

MRS. DIXIE BRANTLEY LITTLE

A Tribute of Respect by Her Family Physician, John Logan Reynolds, M. D.

There are numbers of and various reasons why I should offer this tribute of respect to the memory of the subject of this memoir. It has been my privilege—as well as pleasure—to be the family physician of her father, Robert Ewen Brantley, since Dixie was a small girl, therefore, I was constantly associated with her in the pleasant relation of friendship in various ways, at various times, and at different places. Consequently I have known her very intimately during the period of her childhood and youth as well as the fleeting years she was permitted to live since reaching the age of womanhood. Being thus associated with her in the various walks of life, I have the unmistakable evidence to that she was a plain, congenial, unassuming Christian girl, who always proved her faith by her daily deportment, thereby holding the utmost confidence of her large number of friends. She was reared by parents whose motto is—"Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it." (Proverbs 22:6.)

The statement that she made during the month of December, 1915, which was published in the Providence Enterprise and also the Crittenden Record-Press, relative to her condition and desire to thank her many friends for all kindness and favors shown her during her illness, doubtless closed her correspondence with all newspapers for life. While she wrote this memorable communication with a feeble hand, conscious of the fact that she could not possibly live but a very short time, being confined to her bed with no hope of leaving it again only through death, yet with a clear mind, and a heart submissive to the rules of the Dispenser of all good, she took this method of thanking her friends for what they had already done for her; and also to admonish them of the uncertainty of life, the certainty of death, and the important necessity of being ready.

I have been engaged in the practice of medicine for more than fifteen years, have seen a number of sick people die, but I readily confess that the scene witnessed during the closing hours of this pure life, far exceeds anything, of this nature, that has ever been my sad experience to behold. During the last few months of her life, the theme of her thoughts and actions, seemed to be a delightful preparation for a journey or visit, in which she took great pleasure, to know that she would soon be with kindred and friends whom she had not seen for a period of time. When in her last hours, after everything that medical skill, human thoughtfulness and tender hands could do for her had been done, but all to no lasting advantage, and while she was bidding her family and friends goodbye and assuring them of her certainty of heaven, I approached the side of her bed and asked her if she wished to say anything to me? With the affectionate look of only a true and faithful friend, with my right hand clasped in hers and with her left hand resting on the back of my neck, she said: "Doctor you have been good to me, and always come when I called for you, farewell." Amid those Christian triumphs she left

Ballard's SNOW LINIMENT

Kept always in the house is a guarantee of prompt treatment whenever there is a cut, burn, bruise or other injury to the flesh of any member of the family. The sooner these wounds are treated, the greater certainty that they will heal without much pain or loss of time. It is equally certain that the torture of rheumatism, neuralgia and sciatica, lame back, stiff neck and lumbago will be eased, and the disease speedily driven out of the body. If you have it on hand the suffering is short and the cure is speedy and complete.

us to join the angelic throng for the "Glory World" for which she had so earnestly prayed. "Oh! how sad to our natures, yet how cheering to the Christian hope are scenes like these. The most applicable paragraph that English words are adequate to express is this: "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his!" (Numbers 23:10.)

Dixie Katherine Little-nee Brantley, was born in Webster Co., Kentucky, near Oak Grove, January 6th, 1894. She professed religion in 1907 when she was thirteen years of age and united with the Cumberland Presbyterian church at Oak Grove where she retained her membership until death. She was educated in the schools of Webster county and at Marion Graded and High School. She was married to Burtis Clay Little, of near Piney, Crittenden county, Ky., Dec. 22nd, 1912, and they lived happily together, at their beautiful home in east Crittenden (in the region of the nativity of the writer), for about three years. She died at the home of her parents, where she had been for a number of months, Monday, January 10th, 1916, about 12:30 a. m.

The cause of her death was tuberculosis of lungs with which she had been afflicted for some time. The funeral and burial took place at Oak Grove on Tuesday, January 11th. Owing to her request the funeral services were conducted by Rev. John R. King, a Cumberland Presbyterian minister, and Eld. Abraham Ritch, a general Baptist minister, thus showing that she was not sectarian but liberal in her religious belief. "Let the rose-bush grow and blossom Where the parting tears were shed; To mark the place where she slept Place a monument at her head."

Paved Roads for Iowa.

"The Greater Iowa Association," says Farm and Fireside, "is out for a program calling for the building of 2,000 miles of paved roads, at a cost of $10,000 a mile, or $20,000,000 in all."

"Iowa is roughly 200 by 300 miles in size. Therefore the most that could be hoped for would be the equivalent of three east and west roads and five north and south. The average farm would be 25 miles from one of these boulevards. This seems some distance when the twenty millions are considered."

Who-What-?

In every field of human endeavor the man or the product that excels must forever live in the white light of publicity where envy and emulation are constantly at work.

Whether in art, literature, music, science or industry, excellence brings the same rewards and punishment.

Widespread recognition is the reward, and the punishment fierce denial and detraction.

When a man's work becomes a standard for the whole world, it also becomes a target for envious competitors.

The leader is assailed because he is a leader, and the effort to equal him is the proof of his leadership.

Failing to equal him the follower seeks to depreciate and to destroy—but only confirms once more the superiority of that which he wishes to supplant.

There is nothing new in this. It is as old as the world, as old as human passions—envy, fear, greed, ambition and covetousness.

And it avails nothing. The man or the product that has in them the real qualities of leadership remains the leader.

That which is good or great makes itself known no matter how loud the clamor of denial. That which deserves to live—lives.

MOTHER NATURE
MAKES HER GIFT

Compounds in Her Laboratory Ingredients for the Master Medicine, Tanlac.

Of all the ailments that inflict humanity, chronic dyspepsia probably is the most common. Its causes and characterizations are many. Skilled specialists have been unable to cope with this universal malady, but Mother Nature, who, after all, is an ideal physician in combination with skill in chemistry, has compounded in her inexhaustible laboratory a marvelous remedy for this trouble.

A lecturer would use hours to describe the sufferings that dyspepsia brings. Dyspeptics become listless, then morbid, are melancholy over little things, have whimsical ideas, perhaps "grouchy" is a better word, aside from the nervous physical suffering, and with appetite gone, sleep fitful, dizzy spells and nausea frequent, life hardly seems worth living.

Tanlac seems to almost instantly check this distressing condition and to restore a healthy, normal appetite, bring good, restful sleep, and banish that tired, nervous feeling—in short, to restore the stomach to the habit of doing a full day's work and doing it well.

Tanlac is now being introduced in Marion at J. H. Orme's drugstore and in Blackford at A. T. Brown's drugstore, where it is being explained daily to scores of men and women. Adv.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

The Lord gave—the Lord hath taken to himself Brother J. P. Pierce. On the morning of Jan. 18th, 1916 with loved ones and friends at his bedside, he calmly passed to the reward that awaits the faithful. We mourn because he has left us, but we bow in humble submission to the will of "Him who doeth all things well." And our hearts reach out in deepest sympathy to the bereaved family and many sorrowing friends.

Bro. Pierce was one of the charter members of the First Baptist church, of Marion, Ky.; was the first Church Clerk and the first Deacon. He was the first Superintendent of the Sunday School a position which he held for twenty-eight years. He always worked tirelessly and faithfully for the upbuilding of the Church and Sunday School.

Up to the last few years he had never missed a meeting of the Ohio River Association. He served as moderator of this Association for two years. All through his services in the church and community he worked with a zeal tempered with kindness; and while he has gone from us his influence lives and will abide.

Therefore, be it resolved:—

1st. That we as a church thus express our appreciation of his life and grief at his death.

2nd. That in his death his wife has lost a kind and devoted husband; the children a loving and indulgent father; the church a faithful and efficient member; the community a valued citizen.

3rd. That these resolutions be spread upon the records of the church, a copy be given the family of the deceased and that a copy be given the Crittenden Record-Press for publication.

Done by order of the church January 20th, 1916.

Many children are so crammed with everything, says Everybody's, that they really know nothing. In proof of this read these veritable specimens of definitions written by public school children.

"Stability is taking care of a stable."

"A mosquito is the child of black and white parents."

"Monastery is the place for monsters."

"Tocsin is something to do with getting drunk."

"Expostulation is to have the smallpox."

"Cannibal is two brothers who killed each other in the Bible."

"Anatomy is the human body, which consists of three parts, the head, the chest and the stummick. The head contains the eyes and brains if any. The chest contains the lungs and a piece of the liver. The stummick is devoted to the bowels of which there are five—a, e, i, o and u, and sometimes w and y."—Onward.

How would you like to travel 108 miles by sleigh in zero weather?

That's what President Terry of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company did after the great New York fire of December 16, 1835, in order to make immediate payment of the Hartford losses.

In the same staunch spirit the Hartford promptly paid out $1,900,000 after the Chicago fire, and $10,000,000 after the San Francisco disaster.

Hartford protection costs you no more than other kinds—and you can depend upon prompt settlement in case of fire. May we tell you more about it?

To Drive a Nail in Plaster Without Spoiling the Wall.

"If you wish to drive a nail in a plastered wall," says the February Woman's Home Companion, "first put it in very hot water until it is thoroughly heated. You can then drive it in clean without breaking or chipping any of the surrounding plaster."

"Cold nails will make the plaster fall—

Don't try to drive 'em in. Just boil your nails—approach the wall,

And hammer 'em like sin! —The plaster will not budge a mite. Though swatted like the dickens—

Hot nails are certainly all right. Like incubator chickens."

A Forest For Gun Stocks.

"Black Walnut trees are in great demand at from $30 to $50 a thousand feet" says Farm and Fireside, "because gunstocks are made from them. Large, clean, prime logs, 12 to 14 feet long and from 24 inches and up in diameter, sell for $75 to $100 a thousand feet. The better grade walnut logs are very scarce. One Iowa sawmill company pays out annually to its customers more than $100,000 for black walnut logs. This company produces more than a million gunstocks each year."
